

High Engagement Strategies for Deep Thinking in History Class (CN)

Sharpay Cao (HQ)

Middle School Student Leadership Coordinator / Humanities Teacher

Description:

In this session, we will explore various teaching methods and activities that encourage students to critically analyze and interpret historical events and concepts. From interactive discussion, minor debates to gallery walk, we will discuss practical strategies that not only captivate students' learning experience but also promote deeper thinking skills. Please come and join us whether you are interested in getting an idea of the middle school history class, or you want to gain some ideas about group activities and useful tools for running your class activities.

Outcome:

The outcome of this presentation will leave attendees with a variety of high engagement strategies to promote deep thinking in their history classes; how to facilitate discussions that foster deeper understanding and connections to the material, as well as techniques for promoting collaboration and teamwork among students.
